

Competition Policy

Isolation Steward – Job Description

1 Before the Competition

- Check the presence of: sufficient food and beverages, enough chairs, clock or watch.
- Check the toilets for the competitors. If the toilet is outside the isolation room, then additional staff to accompany the competitors is needed.
- Check what to do if medical help is needed.
- Check that there is a timetable for the competition in the isolation zone close to the starting lists.
- Check that there are starting lists on the wall of the isolation zone and the call zone.
- Get the mobile phone number of the Jury President and the Head Judge. If available, test the walkie-talkies.

2 In the isolation zone

- Always remain friendly and helpful: Competitors can be nervous and may therefore react a bit rude.
- Competitors are not allowed to have any contact with people outside the isolation zone. They may not obtain or try to obtain information regarding the climbing routes except during the allowed observation period (not through mobile phone, camera, video, etc).
- Team coaches and managers in the isolation zone are subjected to the same rules as the competitors (once they have left the isolation zone, they cannot return).
- Persons allowed in the isolation zone:
 - Officials
 - Organizer's officials
 - Competitors eligible to take part in the current round of the competitions
 - Authorized team officials*
 - Other persons specifically authorized by the Jury President (they must be escorted by an approved official).

SPORT CLIMBING AUSTRALIA

3 In the call zone

- Check that the correct competitor prepares for climbing. Make him/her put on their climbing harness if needed (lead and speed) and remind about putting on the climbing shoes. Collect his/her personal belongings.
- If possible, make sure that there are a minimum of 2 competitors ready in the call zone at any time.
- Check the team top and bib number.
- Note that the competitor is not allowed to go to the toilet once he/she is in the call zone.
- Cross out competitor name off list when they leave to climb
- Move competitor's personal belongings to an accessible area for when they complete their climb.